Subject: Please include the Nestle bottling proposal on February's Commission Meeting agenda

I am incredibly disappointed to learn that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting. This was the only opportunity for the public to address the Commission face to face on an issue that is of major concern to tens of thousands across the region: a proposed Nestlé water bottling facility that is being pushed forward by ODFW under Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109. December's Commission Meeting is the only meeting all year in a location accessible to the communities most impacted by this issue, and by removing the public forum the commission is effectively blocking our voice on this controversial issue.

ODFW has received thousands of comments addressed to Director Roy Elicker asking the agency to pull permit application T-11109, and the public has waited for over three years for your agency to discuss our concerns. It is far past time that we are given the opportunity to address the Commission directly on an issue that is undoubtedly one of the most controversial the ODFW has ever been involved with. I respectfully request that Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 be included on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February so that the Commission has a chance to discuss this issue and hear from those who are most impacted by Nestlé's proposal.

Thank you for valuing public input in your agency's decision making process.

Subject: Nestle Botting Proposal MUST Be Discussed

I was appalled to heard that ODFW had pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting. This is an issue that must be given a venue for public discussion and debate, and it's my belief and understanding that the response by community has demanded nothing less. I hope that you will seriously consider including the canceled discussion in the February agenda and take into account the communities opinions when making decisions on this issue.

Subject: The Nestle bottling proposal must be addressed at February's Commission Meeting

I am incredibly disappointed to learn that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting. This was the only opportunity for the public to address the Commission face to face on an issue that is of major concern to tens of thousands across the region: a proposed Nestlé water bottling facility that is being pushed forward by ODFW under Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109. December's Commission Meeting is the only meeting all year in a location accessible to the communities most impacted by this issue, and by removing the public forum the commission is effectively blocking our voice on this controversial issue.

ODFW has received thousands of comments addressed to Director Roy Elicker asking the agency to pull permit application T-11109, and the public has waited for over three years for your agency to discuss our concerns. It is far past time that we are given the opportunity to address the Commission directly on an issue that is undoubtedly one of the most controversial the ODFW has ever been involved with. I respectfully request that Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 be included on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February so that the Commission has a chance to discuss this issue and hear from those who are most impacted by Nestlé's proposal.

This is an issue which affects more than just a spring, a community and a huge corporation. This affects Oregonians across the board and sets a precedent for privatizing water sources which should not be privatized. In a state which values it's natural resources, the environment and healthy living, a bottled water facility represents the antithesis of such values.

Thank you for valuing public input in your agency's decision making process.

Too bad that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting. Do you not want to hear from the tens of thousands across the region who oppose the proposed Nestlé water bottling facility on public lands? Of course you don't. But you will hear from us, anyway, you know. Removing the public forum from December's Commission Meeting may have seemed like it would block our voice on this controversial issue.

It won't.

After waiting over three years for the ODFW to discuss our concerns, after sending thousands of requestst to Director Roy Elicker asking the agency to pull permit application T-11109, we are probably not just going to make a noise like a hoop and roll away.

Please include Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February so that the Commission has a chance to hear from those who will be most affected by Nestlé's proposal.

I'm one of many who are disappointed - even disgusted - that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting.

As you well know, this was the ONLY opportunity for the public to address the Commission in person about this issue - the proposed Nestlé water bottling facility being pushed forward by ODFW under Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109.

December's Commission Meeting was to be the only meeting all year in a location accessible to the communities most affected by this bad proposal, so removing the public forum essentially cuts out the citizens.

We want Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 to be included on the agenda of the Commission meeting in February so that the Commission will discuss the issue openly with those who care most about Nestlé's proposal. Indeed, we care even more than Nestle does - for us, this is not about money or profit; it's about our lives and the lives of all species in the region.

Are you aware of Nestle's world reputation and multiple social controversies? Do we want such a company in our Columbia Gorge. A few: 1)One of the most prominent controversies involving Nestlé concerns the promotion of the use of infant formula to mothers across the world, including developing countries - an issue that attracted significant attention in 1977 as a result of the Nestlé boycott, which is still ongoing. 2)In 2002, Nestlé demanded that the nation of Ethiopia repay $6 million of debt to the company. Ethiopia was suffering a severe famine at the time. 3)In 2008, the Hong Kong government found melamine in a Chinese-made Nestlé milk product.4)A coalition of environmental groups filed a complaint against Nestlé to the Canadian Code of Advertising Standards after Nestlé took out full-page advertisements in October 2008 claiming that "Most water bottles avoid landfill sites and are recycled", The advertising campaign has been called greenwashing. 5)In Zimbabwe, 2009, it was brought to light that Nestlé was buying milk from illegally seized farms currently operated by Robert Mugabe's wife, Grace Mugabe.6)Rapid deforestation in Borneo and other regions, in order to harvest hardwood and make way for palm oil plantations 7)The 2010 documentary The Dark Side of Chocolate alleges that Nestlé purchases cocoa beans from Ivorian plantations that use child slave labour and on and on. This is our Columbia Gorge.. not just the property of Cascade Locks. You need to allow Bark and other environmentally concerned citizens express their concern Jim Norris

The proposed Nestlé water bottling facility proposed by ODFW under Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109 should be addressed in a forum accessible to people affected.

Blocking testimony is like putting a creaky dam in front of a deluge.

ODFW has received thousands of comments addressed to Director Roy Elicker asking the agency to pull permit application T-11109. Those wishing to testify have waited for three years to discuss concerns.

This controversial ODFW proposal needs to be exposed to open air.

Including the Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February allows venting for those who are most impacted by Nestlé's proposal.

I am aware of how often governments disregard public opinion. Nonetheless, not even to make a show of listening would be bad policy.

Portland City Council brings police in as intimidation when they know the people are upset, and THEN the Council does what it wants.

The last time they did this, it prompted an initiative process, but on state policy, I would think you do not have to worry about that. It is now so cruelly difficult to bring initiatives to the ballot.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. If the bottling plant goes in, how do your risk-management people feel about that, given all the press recently to psycho-neuro-endocrine-immunology concerns from plastics? Have persons concerned with effects on health and reproductive success of fish weighed in?

My source of peer-reviewed, clearing-house information on disruptors is the Endocrine Exchange, TEDX, based in Colorado.

Just wondering.

I recently have seen two documentaries (Tapped and Flow) about what companies such as Nestle do to the towns and water tables where they build these bottling plants. Please do some research yourselves because this proposal is not only an environmental outrage (260,000,000 new plastic bottles EVERY YEAR) but is a basic human rights issue (NEVER EVER privatize what sustains life!). Please allow public input on this! Nestle is lying to Cascade Locks about the economic impact of this plant and they surely don't tell the locals that in Fryeburg, Maine, that Nestle acftually DEPLETED THE TOWN'S DRINKING WATER TABLE AND NESTLE REFUSED TO STOP TAKING THEIR WATER IN A TIME OF DROUGHT!. I demand that you include the water exchange issue in the agenda of their next Commission meeting so I, and other concerned citizens, can finally be heard.

I urge you to reject the plan for a water swap that will enable Nestle to gain a foothold in Oregon and begin taking over our precious water resources. This must be nipped in the but and now is the time to do it.

Subject: Nestle bottling proposal - February's Commission Meeting agenda

ODFW: I was disappointed to learn that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting. This was the only opportunity for the public to address the Commission face to face on an issue that is of major concern to tens of thousands across the region: a proposed Nestlé water bottling facility that is being pushed forward by ODFW under Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109. December's Commission Meeting is the only meeting all year in a location accessible to the communities most impacted by this issue, and by removing the public forum the commission is effectively blocking our voice on this controversial issue.

ODFW has received thousands of comments addressed to Director Roy Elicker asking the agency to pull permit application T-11109, and the public has waited for over three years for your agency to discuss our concerns. It is far past time that we are given the opportunity to address the Commission directly on an issue that is undoubtedly one of the most controversial the ODFW has ever been involved with. I respectfully request that Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 be included on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February so that the Commission has a chance to discuss this issue and hear from those who are most impacted by Nestlé's proposal.

Allowing Nestle to bottle water damages Oregon in multiple ways: if works against Oregon's work to reduce garbage by adding millions of plastic bottles to litter our state and waterways, it will damage our pristine watersheds, and for what? So that Nestle can expend unneeded petroleum trucking bottled water and making money at our expense!??

Thank you for valuing public input in your agency's decision making process.

If you can bar as you have the ability of the public to give testimony/ comment's on public lands and it's water's as you have...then the hearing's are not really so PUBLIC, are they?? Permit proposal T-11109 for NESTLE` corp. to take OUR WATER for personal gain is impossible to over look! when you can alter an essential feature in a supposedly democratic process as you have, then it's time to hang up you career, get out of town. Nestle doesn't need our water to be profitable. They just want cheap product for which they can then over charge their customers.

It breaks my heart to learn that Oregon is even considering allowing Nestle to take water from the Columbia Gorge.

It is one of the diamonds of Oregon natural resources and one of the reasons I return to Oregon as a visitor for at least 6 weeks every year.

I am stunned that the Oregon I love (and lived in for over 12 years) is not even allowing the voices of its citizens be heard.

My goal is to bring my money and retire in Oregon in 2-3 years. Will it still be the same? I truly hope so. My grandchildren are waiting for me to move there so they can come visit me.

Denying privatization of our publicly owned water supplies should be a "no-brainer" - no hearings should be needed. To hold such hearings and to block the public's right to speak out strikes me as criminal. If the ODFW grants Nestle this right, I would not be the only citizen to ask "Qui bono?" - "Who benefits?" It most certainly would not be the citizens of Oregon!

Subject: Nestle bottling proposal Meeting should not exclude the public

I am incredibly disappointed to learn that ODFW has pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting.

I am a lifelong Multnomah County resident and would like to express my revulsion to the idea that Nestlé could be allowed to privatize Oregon drinking water. The bottling facility in the Columbia River Gorge should not be permitted.

This proposal would allow public water--water that belongs to all Oregonians-- to be sold to Nestlé, a Swiss corporation, to be bottled and sold for an outrageous mark up. The water in question originates in Oxbow Spring, and is currently used by an Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW) hatchery. Nestlé would take over 100 million gallons annually and add over 200 truck trips per day to the Columbia Gorge National Scenic Area.

Over 20,000 Oregonians so far have sent comments to Governor Kitzhaber asking him to oppose giving Nestlé our water, yet so far he has not listened to the voices of these constituents and has not taken a stand on the issue. Please help him make the right decision and protect public water, our most precious resource. Ask him to "direct ODFW to withdraw their T 11109 application or direct Oregon Water Resources Department to deny that application."

This is an issue that about the people of Oregon and ODFW should not pulled the public forum from its December 7th Commission Meeting.

Thank you

I understand that ODFW's December 7th Commission Meeting was, shall we say, over-agenda'd. However, it remains imperative that the public be allowed to address the Commission face to face on the issue of the proposed Nestlé water bottling facility (Water Transfer Permit Application T-11109). Without the "public forum" at December's meeting, the commission is effectively blocking our voice on this controversial issue.

The public has waited for over three years for your agency to discuss our concerns. It is far past time. I respectfully request that Water Transfer Permit Application T-1109 be included on the agenda for the Commission meeting in February.

Subject: Please Put the Nestlé Water Bottling Issue on the Agenda

Jan 9, 2013

Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife

Dear Department of Fish & Wildlife,

I urge you to put the Nestlé water bottling issue on the agenda for your next ODFW Commission meeting so that the people can be heard.

I am dismayed to hear that the ODFW Commission, in addition to canceling its public comment period at the December meeting, is also considering canceling its February meeting entirely. In both cases, the Commission knew that concerned citizens were planning to attend those meetings to ask the Commission to put a stop to a water exchange that could lead to a Nestlé water bottling plant in the Columbia River Gorge.

There is a statewide coalition representing tens of thousands of concerned citizens, like me, who don't want to see ODFW exchange public water so that Nestlé can bottle and sell it. The Commission should not continue excluding public input on this critical issue.

This is why I urge you to follow through with the February 8th ODFW Commission meeting, and I request you make the Nestlé water bottling issue an official agenda item so the people can have their say. Please take the lead and say 'no' to Nestlé before it's too late!

Thank you for considering my request.

Sincerely,

Maria Tchijov

Dear Department of Fish & Wildlife,

I urge you to put the Nestlé water bottling issue on the agenda for your next ODFW Commission meeting so that the people can be heard.

Keep Nestle the fuck out of Oregon.

This is why I urge you to follow through with the February 8th ODFW Commission meeting, and I request you make the Nestlé water bottling issue an official agenda item so the people can have their say. Please take the lead and say 'no' to Nestlé before it's too late!

Thank you for considering my request.

Dear Department of Fish & Wildlife,

I urge you to put the Nestlé water bottling issue on the agenda for your next ODFW Commission meeting so that the people can be heard.

Bad policy regarding water use is not excused by short term efforts to provide employment.

Worldwide, use of single serving plastic bottles is causing huge environmental problems;

In other jurisdictions, there, bottlers have drawn down local water tables without regard to local needs;

As climate change affects glaciation in the Columbia watershed, the impact on local water levels is uncertain. Now hardly seems the time to install a user that intends to export water from ground sources.

It's disconcerting to learn that my state, seemingly has excluded citizens whose well being and confidence from voicing their concerns in attempts to influence decisions which will directly effect their lives.

I know that other states are not as sensitive to public opinion as Oregon is so your actions to prohibit public comment are worrisome.

Please remember that your constituency is the people of Oregon, local residents directly affected by water use and land use decisions you make. Your constituency is not the corporate interest that Nestlé represents.

You are aware that there is a statewide coalition representing tens of thousands of concerned citizens who don't want to see ODFW exchange public water so that Nestlé can bottle and sell it. I doubt seriously that they will stand aside and let you and Nestlé co-opt either the process nor a vital asset that belongs to the people of Oregon.

The Commission should not continue excluding public input on this critical issue.

This is why I urge you to follow through with the February 8th ODFW Commission meeting, and I request you make the Nestlé water bottling issue an official agenda item so the people can have their say. Please take the lead and say 'no' to Nestlé before it's too late!

Here is a true issue of leaving our children with nothing. Forget debt ceilings and guns. Water is the true gold, and Oregon water is the purest, richest gold on the market. It would be different if they were paying for it like gold so we could rebuild schools and provide healthcare, but no. They are less than pennies a gallon.

I'm amazed that the salmon fisheries and farmers aren't up in arms about this!

I am also dismayed to hear that the ODFW Commission, in addition to canceling its public comment period at the December meeting, is also considering canceling its February meeting entirely. In both cases, the Commission knew that concerned citizens were planning to attend those meetings to ask the Commission to put a stop to a water exchange that could lead to a Nestlé water bottling plant in the Columbia River Gorge.

The more I learn about what large corporations like Nestle are planning, the more outraged I get at the disregard for the resources of this country and around the world. Apparently, the only main concern anymore is money. Why on earth would we want to bottle up and sell the most important resource we have? The few people that are running things are making a run to control the few remaining resources we have left.

Please conserve our water and not let it be shipped and sold across the world. We desperately need to think locally now and not globally.

Nestlé is a company that does not have the public welfare in mind. For years they pushed their baby formula in third-world countries by telling women it was better than breast milk for their infants, when in reality it was worse because the formula had to be mixed with water, which was often contaminated and caused infant diarrhea and death.

Nestle is the most boycotted company around the world for child labor, union busting and environmental concerns. Having negotiated in Brazil to not pump water from an endangered area they willfully did so and fought through lobbying and the courts to tie the hands of the local communities and government while continuing to drain the aquifer. Not only has Maine, Michigan and Florida had runs ins with this company ignoring agreements and then using the courts to continue pumping water from the water table but, they have bribed and lobbied their way into adding more pumping stations around the areas they have been draining. Let's learn from these other states and not make their mistake of trusting or allowing their water resources to be drained by this corporation

It is inappropriate to take this companies unsubstantiated claims of compliance without due diligence by the committee to become more informed about the environmental impact by this foreign entity. It is also, inappropriate to sell a public resource to a private corporation at a time when we are just beginning to see the consequences of global warming on the country as a whole and the food supply specifically in this state when we may need all the water we have available to support the fishing, wildlife and people of this state.

Emptied single-use bottles from bottled water are responsible for a significant part of the trash that is thrown out along our roads and highways. Although our Western Oregon rains and winter snowpack may seem like an unlimited winter resource, the effects of global climate change have already been seen in our drier winters and hotter summers. Do not exchange our precious resource for the profit of an international corporation!

Corporations are controlling all of YOU!! It is time to clean house as far as I am concerned. It is obvious that there is some type of profit in the Nestle deal for all of YOU....and YOU'RE selling your souls for gain somewhere, somehow.

This is not about JOBS, though I have a feeling the Commission will try to cram that down our throats. Nestle can stay out of Oregon, they are one of the MOST corrupt companies in the world.

Nestle grants themselves into everything they want a control over including hospitals-now it's the ODFW Commission they've sucked up!

I lived in Mount Shasta, California and saw what Nestle did to that town by putting in a water bottling plant there. Like this one, the talks were kept hidden from the public, as well as what was in the contract the City of Mount Shasta ended up signing with them. The people around town thought the plant would bring lots of jobs for locals, but most of the employees came from somewhere else.

The company only moved the water out of town at night so no one knew how much water was being trucked out of town. Then of course, Nestle sold the plant after taking most of the water, leaving the water tables permanently affected at considerable cost to the ecosystem and to the Sacramento River watershed. Finally, they abandoned their water plant which is an eyesore sitting on the edge of Mount Shasta.

It's so irresponsible that you would even CONSIDER treating this incredibly valuable PUBLIC resource as though it's your own, private "treat" to use however you wish smacks of horrific arrogance and corrupted motives. The lack of transparency on this matter disgusts me, since every single one of you know just how deceptively you are behaving - deception screams inappropriate behaviors are taking place which you want kept secret. This is NOT your water. The Columbia River Gorge belongs to millions of people, animals, and plants - NOT a small group of officials and a billionaire corporation!

I expect you to rethink your dishonorable behaviors and open this entire process wide open, for the Oregon and Washington public to be involved in. Every bit of it will impact each of us, both directly and indirectly. This is a gravely serious matter and most of us don't consider it a joke. Here is another example of greed and profit at the expense of the American people for the gains of a corporation. ODFW needs to be a leader in this situation and send Nestle packing. Do your research of Nestle's and see how many communities they are taking advantage of. Unfortunately for all of Oregon, Nestle's has more power, money and attorneys so this will be a very expensive case. Unless ODFW does it's job and protects Oregon's water.

It is quite concerning that a state agency is considering selling a public asset without hearing any input from the very public affected by the sale. A dangerous precedent is being set by excluding the public voice. Strikingly contrary to "of the people, by the people and for the people"

This does not look good for ODFW, but I'm assuming that there is another side of the story. Can you tell me if there is any truth to BARK's claims that you scuttled the meeting to stifle dissent.

Subject: Anti-Nestle activists blocked from public meeting
To: glenn@mountainsavvy.com

Dear Glenn,

In a rare move the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW) is blocking the public's voice in its upcoming Commission meeting in Portland.

After learning that anti-Nestlé activists planned to testify at the December 7th Commission Meeting in opposition to the ODFW's involvement with Nestlé, the Commission decided last week to bar us from speaking by canceling the public forum on the meeting agenda. We will not let them silence us! Take action today. Help us ensure that the Nestlé Water Bottling Plant is included in the ODFW Commission's February meeting agenda and plan to join us in February 8th to hold ODFW accountable for its role in the Nestlé proposal.

Take action, mark your calendar for February 8th, and read on for more information.

Background:

The ODFW Commission is the boss of ODFW director Roy Elicker and has the power to withdraw the permits that would allow Nestlé to proceed with its plans to bottle public water currently used at the ODFW Oxbow fish hatchery in Cascade Locks. The Keep Nestlé Out of the Gorge Coalition has been planning for months to testify at the December 7th Commission Meeting, alongside other concerned Oregonians. Public testimony on any item not on the meeting agenda is reserved for a 'public forum' at the start of the meeting, which is exactly when we were planning on speaking – until we discovered that in a last minute move the public forum had been eliminated, effectively shutting us out of the meeting. This would not be a problem if ODFW would include Nestlé permits on its agenda, and allow meaningful public participation. But, despite three years of pushing Nestlé's permits and receiving thousands of public comments asking ODFW to withdraw the water exchange permits, the ODFW Commission has yet to include a discussion of Nestlé permits on its agenda, preferring instead to do Nestlé's dirty work behind closed doors.

We are respectfully choosing to cancel our presence at the December Commission Meeting to allow ODFW the necessary space to address the controversial issue of gillnetting in Lower Columbia fisheries. However, it is unacceptable for ODFW to continue to ignore another controversial issue that also affects Columbia fisheries: Nestlé's plans to bottle public water from Oxbow Spring. It is well past time that we get answers about why the state is pushing to be the first in history to cede public water for Nestlé's corporate profit. We demand that ODFW include a meaningful discussion of Nestlé permit T-11109 on its agenda for the February meeting. For more information call Meredith at 503-331-0374, or meredith@bark-out.org.

Dear Chair Levy and ODFW Commissioners,

In June, two members of the Keep Nestlé Out of the Gorge Coalition testified at your Commission Meeting to ask that a water exchange transfer application ODFW submitted to the Oregon Water Resources Department in 2010 be withdrawn. These permits, if approved, would allow Nestlé Waters North America to bottle the spring water ODFW currently uses at the Oxbow Fish Hatchery, in addition to bottling millions of gallons of well water from the town of Cascade Locks. Thousands of petitions, letters and phone calls from the public have been sent to Director Roy Elicker asking him to withdraw the water exchange permit. Over 30,000 letters and petitions have been sent to Governor John Kitzhaber asking him to direct your department to withdraw these permits. And yet, nothing has been done. As a result, two organizations from the Coalition, Bark and Food & Water Watch, are currently engaged in a contested case hearing for which ODFW, at its own expense, will have to defend its full water right for the Oxbow Fish Hatchery. We are at a loss as to why the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife is seeking permits that would give public water to the most boycotted multinational corporation in the world.

Your upcoming Commission Meeting in Portland is the most accessible meeting of the year for the communities most impacted by this issue. Its location is closest to the City of Cascade Locks, the site of Nestlé's proposed water bottling plant. People from across the region had prepared to attend this meeting on December 7th to support the testimony of a handful of citizens who were preparing to speak during the only time they are allowed to discuss this issue with you--the public forum portion of the meeting. However, just recently we were informed that the public forum has been dropped from the agenda, effectively silencing those who would be affected by this water exchange from voicing their concerns to the Commission in person.

Director's Office

We appreciate the fact that you will be addressing gill-netting on the Lower Columbia at your upcoming meeting and we understand that this is a contentious issue that has drawn the attention of fisherpeople from all parts of Oregon as well as the media and conservation groups. However, after three years of waiting, the public and the Keep Nestlé Out of the Gorge Coalition deserve an answer as to why ODFW is seeking permits to become the first state agency to give public water to Nestlé. It is far past time that a conversation between the public and ODFW take place, and that proper space be given to allow for a meaningful, face to face discussion on this issue. We respectfully ask that a discussion of Transfer #11109 be placed on the agenda for your February meeting in Salem so that a long-overdue, civil, and productive discussion can finally take place.

Thank you for your consideration. Please be in touch to confirm you have received this letter, and if you would like to discuss further.

Sincerely,

Meredith Cocks, Bark

December 4, 2012

Dear Director of ODFW, Roy Elicker:

I wish to inform you that I sent the below letter to all six commissioners of ODFW. As a resident of Cascade Locks, I feel that the proposed Nestle' water bottling plant would be bad for our town and the region. Please assist me in urging the commission to withdraw its water exchange transfer application (T-11109).

Respectfully,

Ed del Val

This past summer, my wife and I moved to Cascade Locks full time, after living between Cascade Locks and Northeast Portland for the past seven years. As community college educators in the Portland-metro area, we made the choice to live here for many reasons. First, we love the natural beauty of the area; it certainly is something for the State of Oregon along with the citizens of Cascade Locks to be proud of. Also, we are excited about the increasing recreational offerings right in the town and in the town's vicinity: world class small boat sailing through the Columbia Gorge Racing Association, hiking trails galore (including the Pacific Crest Trail), expanded cycling opportunities (especially on the heels of the Historic Highway restoration project), just to name a few. Finally, we moved here because we saw that Cascade Locks is a town that could grow on its scenic beauty and recreational appeal, and that it indeed is reaching a tipping point for such a path. Even Portland State University's graduate program in Urban Planning recently chose our town for study, working with town residents and other interested parties to come up with a sustainable economic development plan based on the area's natural and scenic assets. We, along with other Gorge residents, want to build on this momentum and to vehemently voice our concern about a Nestlé water bottling plant in our town.

Because of the beauty and quality of life that Cascade Locks offers us, I urge you to advise your agency, the Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife, to retract its water exchange transfer application (T-11109) and to not enter into this defacto partnership with Nestlé Waters North America so it can bottle public water. Please do not set the precedent of being the first state agency to give away publicly owned water so that Nestlé can profit from it.

Respectfully, here are my major reasons for why such a bottling plant would not be good for Cascade Locks:

1. Nestlé, as a corporation, has a track record of acting in bad faith with consumers and communities from around the world. Visit Corporate Accountability International's website

<http://www.stopcorporateabuse.org/> and simply enter “Nestlé” in the search window to read about many of their abuses. Does the ODFW Commission want to pave the way for such a corporation into our town?

2. Then there’s Nestlé’s product: bottled spring and municipal water. It’s simply not responsible and ethical to turn spring and municipal water into a commodity for profit when we have an infrastructure that supports safe, clean tap water. My wife and I were appalled to attend a recent Nestlé town hall meeting and to see a table laid out with bottled water when there were drinking fountains in the room. If we don’t continue to reverse the bottled water trend, we will see less government funding for public water infrastructures around the world which will mean continued decay of some systems while private corporations continue to deepen their pockets. Do we want to be part of this problem? Read Tapping Congress to Get Off the Bottle: Renewing our public water systems begins by turning off the spigot to bottled water:

<http://www.stopcorporateabuse.org/resource/tapping-congress-get-bottle> As a result of this report, many counties and cities across the United States started passing “take back the tap” campaigns with Multnomah County approving its own take back the tap campaign on October 14, 2010. Consequently, our tax dollars are being spent more responsibly and more attention and funding are being given to our existing tap water infrastructures.

3. A bottled water plant may not be a long-term sustainable solution for our community, especially given how many states, cities, schools, and citizens across the nation have pledged to take back the tap. There’s a movement afoot, and the momentum for bottled water sales in the United States has been fluctuating in recent years. Down the line, if Nestlé decides to pull up stakes, we may find ourselves with yet another dwindling tax base because we were too short sighted.

4. And what about the environmental costs? While I appreciate Nestlé’s efforts to reduce the amount of plastic used to make their bottles and to use as much recycled plastic as possible, that doesn’t change the fact that many of these bottles find their way into our natural habitats and waterways. Back in 2010, I had the opportunity to deliver a small sailboat from Hawaii to San Francisco. I was horrified to discover how much plastic and plastic water bottles were swirling around in the Pacific, and we weren’t anywhere near the main mass of the debris field. Also, as an avid hiker in the Gorge, I often see discarded plastic bottles. A reusable bottle filled with tap water is a cheaper option in the long run and better for the environment, too. Sure, one can argue that people just need to learn to pack out what they pack in (and this includes more than just water bottles), but unnecessary plastic water bottles contribute to the problem, and if people can learn more responsible behaviors, why stop with just teaching the importance of packing out trash?

Also, consider the water waste to produce bottled water. At the Nestlé town hall meeting, we were told that the Nestlé Sacramento bottling plant only wastes 1.27 liters of water to produce a liter of bottled water, and we are asked by Nestlé to consider how much less water is wasted to produce their product over say a pint of beer. Even after the Nestlé town hall meeting, it’s still unclear to me just how much water would be wasted to create one liter of bottled drinking water here in Cascade Locks. But any waste to produce bottled water for mass everyday consumption is simply unconscionable when water from the tap is perfectly fine.

Most importantly, it is not fully understood how Nestlé's high volume of water extraction may affect the water table, and it has yet to be determined if this bottling plant could potentially lower water levels in Herman Creek and impact the surrounding area's natural habitats. I am deeply concerned about the well being of our fish, wildlife, and insect populations that have found their rhythms in a naturally occurring watershed, and I am disappointed that the ODFW and the State has not done more to research the potential damage a bottled water plant could do to the water table over time.

5. Finally, let's consider how a Nestlé bottling plant would affect our livability. At the October 17th Nestlé town hall meeting, the Portland firm that conducted and shared their statistical analysis on noise and air pollution concluded that the plant would not have a major impact on livability. Their studies, however, did not take into account the unique geographic features of Cascade Locks and the surrounding Gorge; instead, they were built on a theoretical model in which sound moves over a flat plane. I question the validity of conclusions drawn in this way. As the son of a commercial truck driver, I am familiar with the sounds and operation of trucks and the equipment used to load and off-load these trucks. As I sit and imagine 100 trucks doing roundtrips through our town, I can't help but privilege my own concrete experiences with this kind of noise over some kind of theoretical model. We were assured that noise and air pollution levels would not significantly rise over the existing averages, therefore not becoming a problem for livability, but this does not take into account the fact that in our daily living we do not exist in a state of averages to where certain distinct sounds get washed out in a sea of other sounds. When that 56th truck comes down the freeway, or down the street of our town, or around the corner from someone's residence, we will be sure to hear it. And as to the nearest residences to the bottling facility, they will have the trucks plus the accompanying "hum of operations" which on an average we are told should not be any louder than what they are already hearing. But again, the citizens of Cascade Locks do not live in a "state of averages."

Certain pro-Nestlé residents in Cascade Locks might say that much of what I have written here is anti-growth and that I don't understand what is best for the town. Such an argument, however, leads from the position that if you're against Nestlé, then you're against any kind of growth. But this is not the case for those of us who stand opposed to Nestlé. We, too, want economic growth in Cascade Locks, but growth of conscience and of values first. We want growth that is desirable, responsible, and ethical. We want growth that leads to a sense of pride and self-worth for our community. We want growth that is creatively and thoughtfully envisioned by the community, not growth that is weaned off of an outside corporate interest whose track record is stained with abuses and whose primary objective is the profit margin. Yes, we do need to grow our tax base in order to sustain and improve our community's services, and I applaud the dedicated residents who have been and are working tirelessly and creatively to bring about desirable growth; however, let us continue to grow as responsible stewards of the area. And as we do what's right, our town should re-double its efforts to court the kinds of businesses that are local and regionally friendly, ones that will thrive in concert with the scenic beauty and recreational appeal of the area. In this way, we can sustainably and responsibly broaden and deepen our tax base along with our livability. This may take us a bit more time, but we owe it to ourselves and to the greater region we reside in. Let us all start by envisioning a community that will make every Cascade Locks resident and visitor feel a sense of pride.

Again, please join me and others who care about creating a more sustainable and livable local economy in Cascade Locks and who want to preserve the delicate nature of our scenic areas. Please withdraw water exchange application (T-11109). Also, since the public comment period on this matter was cancelled for the December 7th commission meeting, please give people a chance to have their voices heard at the February commission meeting by putting the water exchange issue on your agenda.

Thank you for your time and attention.
