Members of the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

I am writing to you to express my concerns regarding the proposed revisions to the Oregon Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. As an Oregonian who supports the recovery of wolves in Oregon and would like to see them survive and thrive in our state, I am concerned that this Plan does not support my values or those of thousands of Oregonians who share them with me. It does not support further recovery and conservation of this magnificent species; rather, it makes it easier to kill them under the minimal conditions of any conflict.

The Plan has provisions that allow for public hunting and trapping of wolves, which is unacceptable. It opens the door for hunting wolves without calling it that. It also has very poor standards for deciding on when the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife can authorize the killing of a wolf as a result of conflict with livestock. Two instances of livestock loss in nine months in a state with more than one million cattle is a very low standard for authorizing killing of a wolf. I urge you to direct ODFW to adopt a standard based on the best available science.

Instead of focusing on how to kill wolves in the name of management, I see more value in investing OFDW's time and resources to prevent such conflicts in the first place by empowering communities with non-lethal coexistence tools and information. As members of a Commission that directs the agency responsible for the conservation of Oregon's rich wildlife heritage, I request that you take a stand on my behalf for wolves in Oregon. I ask this of you for the present as well as our future generations.

I hope you take my concerns into consideration as you deliberate on the future of wolves in Oregon.

Respectfully,
Dr. Hillary Tiefer

Members of the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

I am writing to you to express my concerns regarding the proposed revisions to the Oregon Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. As an Oregonian who supports the recovery of wolves in Oregon and would like to see them survive and thrive in our state, I am concerned that this Plan does not support my values or those of thousands of Oregonians who share them with me. It does not support further recovery and conservation of this magnificent species; rather, it makes it easier to kill them under the minimal conditions of any conflict.

The Plan has provisions that allow for public hunting and trapping of wolves, which is unacceptable. It opens the door for hunting wolves without calling it that. It also has very poor standards for deciding on when the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife can authorize the killing of a wolf as a result of conflict with livestock. Two instances of livestock loss in nine months in a state with more than one million cattle is a very low standard for authorizing killing of a wolf. I urge you to direct ODFW to adopt a standard based on the best available science.

Instead of focusing on how to kill wolves in the name of management, I see more value in investing OFDW's time and resources to prevent such conflicts in the first place by empowering communities with non-lethal coexistence tools and information. As members of a Commission that directs the agency responsible for the conservation of Oregon's rich wildlife heritage, I request that you take a stand on my behalf for wolves in Oregon. I ask this of you for the present as well as our future generations.

I hope you take my concerns into consideration as you deliberate on the future of wolves in Oregon.

Please save our wolves! They are only beginning to recover. We need more wolves, not less. This magnificent animal needs much more time to increase the size of their packs!

Respectfully,

Ms. Sandra Stoffel

We are in the midst of a major Extinction Event. Every failure to do what is possible to support and improve our ecosystems is an assault on the future of our state and planet. Wolves are apex predators, essential to the robust health of their historical ecosystems. It is pure idiocy to hold that the 137 wolves in Oregon (according to the state's annual report in April) constitute either a recovered population or a significant threat of any kind to human interests. Do not let greed, hate, and irrational fear dictate wolf policy in Oregon.

Look to science and do your duty to protect and preserve our state wildlife.

I hope you take my concerns into consideration as you deliberate on the future of wolves in Oregon.

Members of the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

As a livestock owner, I am writing to express my concerns regarding the proposed revisions to the Oregon Wolf Conservation and Management Plan.

As an Oregonian who supports the recovery of wolves in Oregon, this plan does not support my values or those of thousands of other Oregonians. It does not support further recovery and conservation of this magnificent species; rather, it makes it easier to kill them under minimal conditions of any conflict.

The plan has provisions that allow for public hunting and trapping of wolves. Trapping is an incredibly inhumane and egregious form of wildlife 'management.' I can't imagine inflicting such pain and fear on any living creature in the name of 'control.' In addition, the plan has very poor standards for deciding on when the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife can authorize the killing of a wolf as a result of conflict with livestock. I urge you to direct ODFW to adopt a standard based on the best available science that includes the intrinsic value of predators as a healthy and normal component of our ecosystem.

(https://e360.yale.edu/features/the_crucial_role_of_predators_a_new_perspective_on_ecology.)

Furthermore, Chronic Wasting Disease is a very serious threat to deer and elk herds, and maintaining predator populations helps keep such diseases at bay.

(https://www.idahostatejournal.com/outdoors/xtreme_idaho/deadly-cwd-knocking-at-the-doors-for-idaho-deer-populations/article_258bb13f-b340-5916-b26d-464c725615cd.html.)

Healthy predator populations also support healthy plant life by preventing ungulates from overpopulating and overgrazing which destroys the grasses, shrubs and trees that support the existence of thousands of species.

Livestock owners take an inherent risk when they graze animals on public land. Increasing grazing fees could help offset the costs of such risks by increasing reimbursement for loss. As a tax payer, it's aggravating that livestock owners and hunters have such a powerful stake in the system of wildlife management. Instead of focusing on how to kill wolves in the name of management, I see more value in investing OFDW's time and resources to prevent such conflicts in the first place by empowering communities with non-lethal coexistence tools and information.

I realize I don't represent the views of most east Oregonians; however, I hope you take my concerns into consideration as you deliberate on the future of wolves in Oregon.

Respectfully,

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

PERSONAL NOTE....NO, NO, NO, NO, NO, NO and HELL NO!

Wolves have NOT recovered in our state. The recovery has begun and is far from complete. This is NOT my opinion, it is scientific FACT.

The ranchers and anti-wolf factions are a TINY MINORITY of the state's population...a majority population that fully supports a FULL recovery of wolves throughout the state.

We, the People, have spoken loud and clear and we demand that you listen to our voices and develop a real wolf recovery plan for the state...one that honors our wishes, addresses the needs (not desires) of the ranchers in our state, and ENSURES an ENDURING positive future for the wolves. We will not tolerate being dictated to by the shortsighted and self-serving voices of the minority - anti-wolf complainers and haters.

NO MORE WOLF KILLING!!!!

That said, please read on.....Thank you!

I am honestly dismayed that cattle depredations are going to be the benchmark for wolf killings in OR. As an OR resident and taxpayer, I don't believe we should have to subsidize the killing of our endemic wildlife to support a vocal minority of grazers. Most grazers already enjoy significant benefits (paying reduced fees to graze on public lands; tax subsidies, etc., etc.). The overwhelming public in OR want to see our wolves thrive in what is their endemic habitat in OR.

Encouraging ever-increasing on habitat and loss of habitat in general has pushed the handful of wolves we have left to need to live amongst us. We need to have a science-based approach to managing wolves - not an economic-based approach that is very obviously skewed in favor of grazers. As one of the few liberal states left with wolves, we need to be the guardians of this native species as the red states are waging all out war on the wolf and so is the science-averse Trump admin. I hope that ODFW is still using sound science to support its decision making - if so, it won't allow for these indiscriminate killings.

I hope you take my concerns into consideration as you deliberate on the future of wolves in Oregon.

Subject: Wolf Plan Comment on Latest Revisions

Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. For example, the draft plan that was in front of the Commission in November of 2017 set a threshold of 3 in 12 months as a standard for chronic depredation (something that did not have consensus from the various stakeholders). Now, the current revisions propose 2 in 9 months -- a clear and significant erosion of protections.

Similarly, ODFW insists on incorporating public hunting and trapping into the Wolf Plan, even after public outcry, scientist input on the negative effects of hunting on social tolerance, and statewide polling which shows that a majority of Oregonians oppose it.

Finally, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan water-down the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Ms Sherry Palmer

Dear ODFW Commission,

You need to learn who the wolf hunters actually are. I've looked. They aren't responsible hunters. Some are simply helping ranchers, but many just want another excuse to kill. I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. For example, the draft plan that was in front of the Commission in November of 2017 set a threshold of 3 in 12 months as a standard for chronic depredation (something that did not have consensus from the various stakeholders). Now, the current revisions propose 2 in 9 months -- a clear and significant erosion of protections.

Similarly, ODFW insists on incorporating public hunting and trapping into the Wolf Plan, even after public outcry, scientist input on the negative effects of hunting on social tolerance, and statewide polling which shows that a majority of Oregonians oppose it.

Finally, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan water-down the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Howe

Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the Plan's title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but conserve our recovering wolf population, a population currently so low that the student body of Oakland high school outnumbers Oregon's wolves.

Killing wolves disrupts their family structure and eliminates needed hunters from a pack, which puts them under necessity of seeking easier prey such as livestock. Using "lethal measures" therefore actually increases the likelihood of wolf-livestock conflicts.

Wild predators need our protection and the State should stop molly-coddling ranchers with its "management plans." The onus should be on ranchers to find a way to function with living wild predators. They should be at least strongly incentivized, if not required, to engage in "predator-friendly" practices, which have been proven viable. But as long as it remains easier to go crying to Fish and Wildlife rather than accept a new way of working, there will be no incentive for practices to change. Our wildlife are our legacy and need the State's protection. But it's clear from the revisions of this Plan that the State has an agenda, which is not the agenda of the populace, but the agenda of an industry. This, I believe, is the definition of corruption.

Allow me to phrase this another way: Would it break my heart if the price of wool went up? No. Does it break my heart when Oregon loses another wolf? Absolutely. Wolves belong here. The fact that we possess a power over another life does not make it morally right for us to use that power: human beings are not at moral liberty to eliminate or virtually eliminate an entire population for our convenience.

Nature functions like a well-oiled machine in the absence of human "management." Here's a plan: leave wolves alone. Regulate humans. Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Thank you.

While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

I am amazed that a private industry and lobby (ranchers and hunters) receive so much govt. funding for running private businesses. Please note that cattle killed by wolves consist of ONLY 0.2% of total livestock killed! Most livestock deaths are due to respiratory and digestive tract diseases. The focus of ranchers should be better animal husbandry to prevent these losses. To reduce wolf predation, the ranching industry needs to adapt a 24/7 range riding and other non lethal methods. This will work...but killing wolves aimlessly is doomed to failure, since this destroys the social structure of the pack allowing juveniles to scatter and attempt to kill the "low hanging fruit" prey.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. Dear ODFW Commission, ODFW's management approach to wolves is short-sighted and scientifically indefensible.

Most (70%) of polled Oregonians want wolves running wild in Oregon. ODFW's job is to provide for the highest public interest - in this case, perpetuating healthy wolf populations - not kowtowing to loud voices in the livestock industry based on failed, outdated and scientifically unsupportable livestock-carnivore paradigms.

Wolves do not exist in most of the state. Where wolves do exist, public perception is that ODFW first and foremost serves the cattle industry, and not the people of Oregon by properly managing an apex carnivore. Multiple studies (including Zoe Hanley's recent dissertation from Washington State University), document that wolves are responsible for far less than 1% of cattle death, and that disease and untended injury account for about 30% of cattle death - so why isn't ODFW exerting its influence on those exercising poor cattle husbandry, rather than against wolves who are responsible for less than one percent of loss?

Sadly, common perception is that ODFW has turned itself into a livestock business agency, rather than a wildlife agency. Just look at the banner photo in the most recent Wolves-Livestock Update: a cowboy herding a group of cattle through a forest. The idea of hunting a small population of wolves in this state is absurd. Properly managed cattle negates any need to hunt or kill wolves. ODFW needs to return to its scientific roots, and incorporate deterrents rather than hunting to manage wolves. Oregonians at large will fight hunting allowances for wolves and hunting wolves will bring discredit to the Fish and Wildlife Commission. The public blowback will be tremendous if hunting wolves is allowed, and the public is actively working to replace commissioners without backgrounds in wildlife science.

I thus strong oppose the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. Dear ODFW Commission,

I strongly oppose the current revisions to the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan as proposed by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The current revisions propose a threshold of 2 in 9 months as a standard for chronic depredation instead of 3 in 12 months -- a weakening of protections. Public hunting and trapping would be part of the Plan even though most Oregonians oppose both. By not requiring non-lethal control measures to reduce conflict between wolves and livestock, more wolves will be killed. Our small population of wolves deserves more rather than less protection.

Please encourage the Department of Fish and Wildlife to come up with a plan that protects the wildlife under its jurisdiction rather than sacrificing wildlife to those who wish to harm it. Our history of prosecuting wolves is shameful, and we need to protect those few who remain.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear ODFW Commission,

In Benton County Oregon we have an "Agriculture and Wildlife Protection Program." Essentially it gives ranchers and farmers the option of using non-lethal control methods to control predators. It is understood by many ranchers and farmers that the health of their land is connected to the health of the wildlife. Wolves are important species in our ecosystems here in Oregon, and deserve protection. Please protect wolves in the revised Wolf Plan. Wolves are not just the domain of hunters and trappers. They are a valuable part of the natural world.

Thank you --Debra Higbee-Sudyka

It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. For example, the draft plan that was in front of the Commission in November of 2017 set a threshold of 3 in 12 months as a standard for chronic depredation (something that did not have consensus from the various stakeholders). Now, the current revisions propose 2 in 9 months -- a clear and significant erosion of protections.

Similarly, ODFW insists on incorporating public hunting and trapping into the Wolf Plan, even after public outcry, scientist input on the negative effects of hunting on social tolerance, and statewide polling which shows that a majority of Oregonians oppose it.

Finally, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan water-down the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

One last thought. The wolf has barely managed to get just a tiny toe-hold again in its natural territory, thanks to the passion of those of us who know how critical a healthy wolf population is to the balance of nature. We are still so far from that, yet ODFW is acting as their enemy - in service to the wildlife industry which so greatly exaggerates the wolf's "threat" to their livelihood. Does the (misnamed) ODFA ever recognize the rights of wildlife? No. All that matters is the continued (illusionary) hegemony of people. Nice job, folks!

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear ODFW Commission,

I strongly oppose the proposed revisions to the Wolf Conservation and Management Plan.

I insist on Real CONSERVATION and PROTECTION of wolves as well as other animals. I live in rural Clatsop County with sheep and horses grazing my land which borders on state and private forest. I strongly oppose (along with most Oregonians) public hunting of wolves.

It is imperative to require (not suggest) that non lethal measures be given the time to make a difference in conflicts.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population. I am a frequent visitor to Oregon and spend many weeks hiking in your beautiful forests and would love nothing more than to be able to hear unharassed wolves living their lives freely without thinking about how you want to kill them for being on public land because of a bunch of ranchers who aren't keeping their herd protected and therefore have animals that the wolves would take in a natural setting.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. Wolves have as much right to their place in our ecosystem as humans, perhaps more in light of their being part of that ecosystem long before we humans appeared. Let's find ways to provide for them rather than elbowing them aside, in our usual way of mistakenly placing humans as "masters of the planet" and all other life forms as our slaves.

BTW: Since when does the State Fish and Wildlife Commission have an obligation to prop up independent business folks, e.g. ranchers, in their quest to become successful? No one offered help me in the forty years I was an independent insurance agent, compensating me for losses I suffered in attempting to get my business started and continuing to keep it successful over those forty years. And I never thought I deserved financial backing - which came from my fellow citizens' tax payments - in becoming successful!

Thank you.

It is absolutely appalling that the department meant to protect and serve our wildlife and environment isn't using science and reasonable measures in the wolf plan. Some of the ranchers are purposely moving cattle to known wolf environs so as to use it as an excuse to eliminate the wolves. It's been proven over and over again that a pack hunts stock LESS if it is mature with more and older members to hunt their natural prey. It's when it is young, small and desperate that packs resort to stock vs. wildlife.

Finally, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan water-down the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. There are not many wolves in Oregon, and not much space for them to roam. There will be conflicts with wildlife, but it will never bankrupt a rancher, if they're compensated for livestock losses. The new legislation which lowers protections seems like a transparent attempt to remove wolves from Oregon... Again. I'm hoping that the wolves remain long enough for me to witness them in the wild, but with such a tiny population, it's very unlikely. I hope that this plan doesn't go into effect; I hope we don't give the small number of people who have wolves the chance to eradicate them from our public lands once again.

While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

Isn't it ironic, people wring their hands because so many species are going extinct, but when they could help restore a species, they find it isn't convenient and want to destroy it?

I'm willing to pay whatever compensation is due to ranchers who lose their cattle and sheep to wolves--it's a small price to pay for the ecological good that they do.

Dear ODFW Commission,

If Oregon allows wolf hunting, I will do everything possible to make Oregon pay by taking away my business as a resident and business owner on the state border. Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express passionate advocacy of our iconic wolves, as well as my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population. In fact it amounts to planned extirpation, making it worse than reckless. At a critical point in this unprecedented, human-driven, worldwide mass-extinction event, this plan is, frankly, calamitous.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. For example, the draft plan that was in front of the Commission in November of 2017 set a threshold of 3 in 12 months as a standard for chronic depredation (something that did not have consensus from the various stakeholders). Now, the current revisions propose 2 in 9 months -- a clear and significant erosion of protections.

Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

The fact is that wolves are proven to strengthen the health of ecosystems as well as (perhaps counter-intuitively, but measurably) increase biological diversity in the areas in which they are allowed to thrive. With the challenges posed by a changing climate, this very biological diversity is our best hedge against ecological/economic collapse. Plus, the majority of Americans love wolves and vote to protect them. In short, we, and our planet, are better with wolves than without.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Dear ODFW Commission,

I oppose the proposed revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. Why is the lowest common denominator, lest humane approach being emphasized? Why the insistence on hunting and trapping in the Wolf Plan, despite scientific and public opposition, despite alternative methods being available? The proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan bury the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves was okay when white people showed up in Oregon in the 19th Century, because we were an ignorant and superstitious people. Surely we've progressed; we know all more about wolves, we know about the importance of many different species and the ecosystem, and we are wise enough to know that there is a lot we still don't know.

It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead wolves and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls short.

Dear ODFW Commission,

My question is how many wolves does Oregon consider a healthy population before they need to hunt them? It seems Oregon is choosing to make it difficult to get those numbers. Second question where are these depredations taking place at? I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. While the word 'conservation' is in the title, it's clear that these latest revisions by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife attempt to do everything but protect our recovering wolf population.

It seems that every time ODFW has an opportunity to revise the Wolf Plan, provisions are weakened even further. For example, the draft plan that was in front of the Commission in November of 2017 set a threshold of 3 in 12 months as a standard for chronic depredation (something that did not have consensus from the various stakeholders). Now, the current revisions propose 2 in 9 months -- a clear and significant erosion of protections.

Similarly, ODFW insists on incorporating public hunting and trapping into the Wolf Plan, even after public outcry, scientist input on the negative effects of hunting on social tolerance, and statewide polling which shows that a majority of Oregonians oppose it.

Finally, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan water-down the most important tool in the toolbox: using non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful non lethal measures to work, however this plan undermines those efforts by merely suggesting that livestock operators use non lethal techniques, not requiring it.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short.

Please request that ODFW staff go back to the drawing board to bring you a plan that is scientifically justified, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a new model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs Donna Griffen

I am a former Oregonian who now lives in Montana, with a pack of wolves and a den of wolverines quite near my home. It is good to have native wildlife around, but people's attitudes toward wildlife need to improve. It is because of the selfish and short-sighted decisions of the past that Oregon lost our native wolves, and probably why fishers, wolverines and lynx are nearly gone as well. Let's accept that wild animals are part of a healthy, complete, living landscape, and belong here, even wolves.

Oregon has very few wolves, and they are only just beginning to recolonize landscapes where they belong and where they contribute to healthy, more diverse and resilient ecological systems. Relatively few Oregonians are ranchers or trappers, and most hunters I know are decent people who would prefer natural game populations, which coevolve along with predators, that can remove sick ones, keeping the rest stronger.

Oregon already has plenty of cows, doing plenty of damage on our public lands and to our watersheds, which we all pay the price for (in degraded land, water, fish and wildlife) eventually. It is the rancher's responsibility to protect their livestock, and how is losing a few to wolves much different than losing them to accidents and disease? It happens, and reasonable solutions, that protect wildlife, should be employed.

The citizens of Oregon should not pay for killing wolves to protect livestock. Personally, I believe that it is perfectly fair for wolves to eat any livestock on public land, because wolves are publicly owned, and beneficial to the landscape (livestock are neither). It is time to stop treating ranchers (and fur trappers) as if they deserve any more special privileges. Please consider the wellbeing of Oregon's shared resources, for the benefit of everyone, fairly. We are all better off when our native wildlife can return to the habitats where they belong. The few wolves that are trying to reoccupy their niche in Oregon need protection and encouragement to reestablish healthy populations.

Thank you.

It is well known that killings wolves disrupts pack dynamics. This can cause more instances of lone wolves. Without the strength of a pack, lone wolves often resort to killing livestock. Lethal 'management' is often the true cause of livestock depredation.

Oregonians deserve a better Wolf Plan, one that results in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict. Unfortunately, the proposal in front of you today falls far short. As a long time Oregonian I would like to formally request that this plan NOT move forward. No new wolf plan should be passed until a more fair and balanced program can be decided upon.

Thank you.

Wolves appear to be the best defense against Chronic Wasting disease. Additionally, evidence shows that often killing wolves and destroying the cohesiveness of a pack actually increases predation on ranch and farm animals. This is especially true when the younger inexperienced animals lose their teachers that help them learn about bringing down wild prey and resort to domesticated "easier prey".

Cruel, inhumane traps and snares should also be illegal. Both wild animals and pets have suffered painful deaths in these traps which are made even worse by baiting them.

Cattle grazing on public land strips the land and destroys the biodiversity needed for a healthy ecosystem. This should not be allowed. Not grazing on public land also makes it easier to protect their cattle.

Thank you.

Dear ODFW Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current revisions of the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. I am disturbed that the latest revisions weaken protections for wolves rather than protecting a still recovering wolf population.

ODFW insists on including public hunting and trapping in the Wolf Plan, even though a majority of Oregonians are opposed to it and despite input from scientists on the negative effects of hunting on wolf social structure.

Unfortunately, the proposed revisions to the Wolf Plan de-emphasize non-lethal measures to reduce wolf-livestock conflict. Killing wolves should be the option of last resort. It's important to allow enough time for effective and meaningful nonlethal measures to work. This plan undermines those efforts by not requiring that livestock operators use nonlethal techniques, but rather merely suggesting it.

Please request that ODFW staff to start over and come up with a plan that results in less conflict with people and fewer dead livestock and wolves. Instead, I would like to see a plan that is scientifically sound, supported by a majority of Oregonians, and makes Oregon a model for wolf recovery in the 21st century.

Dear Chair Michael Finley,

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife's proposed Wolf Management Plan is not only weaker than previous drafts, but fails to represent the values of Oregonians. It appears that ODFW's intention is to find ways to kill wolves faster, not prioritize conflict prevention through non-lethal measures. Oregonians - and wolves - deserve a plan based in science, one that is reflective of Oregon's conservation values, and one that prioritizes using non-lethal measures as a way to reduce conflict. Ultimately, this approach would result in fewer dead livestock, fewer dead wolves, and less human conflict.

We urge you to focus on prioritizing meaningful, transparent, enforceable, and effective non-lethal measures and only allow wolves to be killed in active defense of livestock. Additionally, we urge you to reform and drastically increase funds for an existing program that compensates livestock operators to fund non-lethal conflict prevention work and mitigate any potential economic impacts caused by wolves.

Oregonians deserve a science-based plan that leads to less conflict and less killing. Not long ago, Oregon set a standard for the rest of the nation. Under previous ODFW plans, Oregon's wolf population grew while livestock loss, wolf killing, and other conflict dramatically decreased. We urge you to find a way for humans and wolves to co-exist peacefully once again.

Sincerely,
Joli Darling

RE: Ensure Strong Protections for Oregon's Wolves!

Dear ODFW Commissioners,

Dear Commissioners:

I'm writing you because I am concerned about the Department of Fish and Wildlife's proposal for Oregon's wolves. I am deeply opposed to the proposed focus on killing wolves to address livestock depredations. Not only are ranchers already being compensated for their losses, but recent studies have continued to show that killing wolves is ineffective at curbing livestock losses or preventing future conflict. It is purely retribution and has no place in state policy aimed at resolving these issues in the most efficient and effective way possible.

I would request that you reject the Department's proposal, and ask the agency to refocus its efforts on a plan that prioritizes non-lethal, preventative measures. These have proven to be the most cost-efficient and effective means at curbing livestock losses and preventing future conflict.

The Department is unfortunately attempting to stick to what is familiar, and push forward a plan that simply requires agency staff to do the least amount of work. Although a focus on conflict prevention might require more work and coordination by the Department, it is a system that commits livestock producers to proven conflict-prevention measures.

The Department needs strong guidance from you now!

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Sincerely,
John Deddy

Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife

RE: Ensure Strong Protections for Oregon's Wolves!

Dear ODFW Commissioners,

Dear Commissioners:

I'm writing you because I am concerned about the Department of Fish and Wildlife's proposal for Oregon's wolves. The DFW is supposed to protect our wildlife and all its inhabitants. The iconic wolf is part of our wildlife. Please tell them to do their job and not to be swayed by the over-exaggerations of Ranchers whose sole mission is to eradicate the wolf.

I am deeply opposed to the proposed focus on killing wolves to address livestock depredations. Not only are ranchers already being compensated for their losses, but recent studies have continued to show that killing wolves is ineffective at curbing livestock losses or preventing future conflict. Studies have also shown that more livestock are killed by disease and the domesticated dog then by wolves. Facts are facts. Don't let ignorance to these and other facts lead you to believe that ranchers do not have an ulterior motive. It is purely retribution and has no place in state policy aimed at resolving these issues in the most efficient and effective way possible.

I would request that you reject the Department's proposal, and ask the agency to refocus its efforts on a plan that prioritizes non-lethal, preventative measures. These have proven to be the most cost-efficient and effective means at curbing livestock losses and preventing future conflict.

Science has proven that wolves are a necessary part of our eco systems. They are one of the most misunderstood and misrepresented creatures of our beautiful wilderness.

The Department is, unfortunately, attempting to stick to what is familiar, and push forward a plan that simply requires agency staff to do the least amount of work. Although a focus on conflict prevention might require more work and coordination by the Department, it is a system that commits livestock producers to proven conflict-prevention measures. The Department should do their job and listen to the science.

Science doesn't lie, facts do not lie. It is possible for man, in this case ranchers, and wolves to co-exist. The need to murder and destroy an entire species is both irresponsible and ignorant.

The Department needs strong guidance from you now!

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Sincerely,

RE: Ensure Strong Protections for Oregon's Wolves!

Dear ODFW Commissioners,

Dear Commissioners:

I'm writing you because I am concerned about the Department of Fish and Wildlife's proposal for Oregon's wolves. I am deeply opposed to the proposed focus on killing wolves to address livestock depredations and have quit eating cows because of it. As private business, ranchers should not have use of public lands and access to wildlife. They should learn to work with Nature harmoniously--all predator species.

Not only are ranchers already being compensated for their losses, but recent studies have continued to show that killing wolves is ineffective at curbing livestock losses or preventing future conflict. It is purely retribution and has no place in state policy aimed at resolving these issues in the most efficient and effective way possible.

Ranchers and their rich friends just want to hunt and kill like serial killers and they are teaching their children to be monsters. This is why the world is falling apart. These people are controlling everything.

For ethical reasons, you should reject the Department's proposal, and ask the agency to refocus its efforts on a plan that prioritizes non-lethal, preventative measures. These have proven to be the most cost-efficient and effective means at curbing livestock losses and preventing future conflict.

The Department is unfortunately attempting to stick to what is familiar, and push forward a plan that simply requires agency staff to do the least amount of work. Oregon must not be involved in what will happen when wolves lose their protection. I hope Oregon is more proactive in regard to NOT killing wolves for no other reason than they ate a cow. They should be where they are, cows shouldn't!

Thank you for considering my comments.

RE: Ensure Strong Protections for Oregon's Wolves!

Dear ODFW Commissioners,

Dear Commissioners:

The continual denial for protections for wolves in Oregon is constantly overlooked and undermined by the very agency we pay to be a champion for wolves, not cattle industrialists! ODFW!

The public overwhelmingly supports non lethal wolf management approaches. Science on wolf studies prove that killing wolves increases their pack disruption and boundaries and increases depredation.

Depredation is something cattle industrialists must live with when they choose to usurp all other citizens rights in the outdoors, including the greater good- whether it is private land that never should give anyone rights of control over nature. Or public lands where citizens pay for a greedy industrialists living!

We the citizens are strong. We are angry! We won't take a narrow body in our government structure overruling our rights, needs, desires for a sound whole ecosystem of nature surrounding us. We are a wave! We are coming for those who choose to defy and deny us!

AMERICAN TAXPAYERS SPENT A LOT OF MONEY TO REINTRODUCE WOLVES TO OUR COUNTRY. THE WOLVES BELONG TO ALL AMERICANS AS PART OF THE PUBLIC TRUST; YOUR STATE IS ALLOWED TO ADMINISTER PARTS FOR EVERY AMERICAN, NOT JUST THE WELFARE RANCHERS WHO MAKE PRIVATE PROFITS AT PUBLIC EXPENSE, AND THE TROPHY HUNTERS WHO ENJOY TORTURING AND KILLING OUR WILDLIFE. FEWER THAN 6% OF AMERICANS HUNT; AND WOLVES BRING MORE TOURIST DOLLARS THAN HUNTERS. IF YOUR DEPARTMENT INCOME IS BASED ON THE SALE OF HUNTING LICENSES, THERE MUST BE REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE BUDGET SO YOU ARE PAID BY EVERYONE, NOT JUST THE KILLERS.

I would request that you reject the Department's proposal, and ask the agency to refocus its efforts on a plan that prioritizes non-lethal, preventative measures. These have proven to be the most cost-efficient and effective means at curbing livestock losses and preventing future conflict.

Subject: Comments on Oregon Wolf Plan Revision

Dear Chair Finley,

I am an Oregon livestock producer, and I am writing to comment on the recently released draft of the Oregon Wolf Conservation and Management Plan.

I am concerned about ODFW's decision to increase the depredation threshold in Phase II and Phase III from two confirmed depredations to three confirmed depredations before lethal take is considered. I care deeply about my livestock, I do not want to have to wait for more of my livestock to be killed by wolves before the Department is authorized to consider lethal take. I believe that the Department has the expertise and experience to know when lethal take is appropriate in a given area, and I would like to see the Plan move back to the original threshold to give the Department discretion to decide when to move to lethal take. While I appreciate being able to count probable depredations toward a decision to move to lethal take, the number of probables in the draft plan is much too high. I would like to see two probable depredations equal one confirmed, which would enable the Department to move to lethal take after one confirmed and two probable depredations. This would give the Department the ability to decide when to move to lethal control, and avoid making producers wait for more of their livestock to be killed when there is a known problem wolf in the area.

I would also like to see greater local control in confirming depredations. The plan revisions allow depredation determinations to be made by either ODFW or USDA Wildlife Services in Phase III. I think ODFW should allow their local field biologist, local law enforcement, or USDA Wildlife Services to make depredation determinations in their local area. I am aware that sometimes it has taken ODFW several days to make a depredation decision in some instances, and that the ultimate decision is often made outside the local field office. As wolf populations continue to expand and increase, this process is far too time consuming and resource intensive. Depredation determinations need to be made locally.

I would also really like to see the plan discuss and plan for setting population objectives for wolves. For most other species, the Department has a sense of the habitat carry capacity and uses that information to set population objectives. I worry that without setting population objectives for wolves, we will not be able to tell when wolves have reached their natural carrying capacity and are turning to livestock as a primary source of food. We need to ensure that wolves in Oregon are managed to the natural carrying capacity, and do not exceed the capacity in a way that will increase the burden on livestock producers. To that end, ODFW should modify the Plan to create wolf management areas or zones with set population objectives within each zone.

Additionally, I am very invested in making sure that ODFW does not move away from collaring wolves as a primary method to track wolves across all phases. In much of Oregon, the vast majority of wolf habitat will be on private land which is also used for livestock and crop production. Livestock producers need to know when wolves are in their area so that they can try to manage to avoid conflict. Additionally, we need an increased focus on collaring to help ensure that the Department is getting accurate information on wolf location and dispersal for their counts. I would like to see ODFW collar at least 50% of the wolf packs, with a priority around packs that are likely to have conflict with livestock. I think ODFW should consider partnering with local governments, industry groups, and others to help ensure that we have funding for this important task.

Finally, for producers west of Highway 395, I think that ODFW should work with USFWS to help ensure that federally listed wolves in Oregon are treated similarly to federally delisted wolves. This should include support for federal delisting and working with USFWS to develop necessary plans and permits to ensure equal management across the state until delisting occurs.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the draft Wolf Conservation and Management Plan revisions. Oregon livestock producers have been integral in helping ensure wolf populations around the state are continuing to grow. However, I am concerned about increased impacts on my operation as populations continue to grow. I hope you'll consider my feedback as you look toward Plan revisions.

Sincerely,

Subject: Strengthen Protections for Wolves in Oregon's Plan!

Dear Chair Finley and Commissioners:

I'm writing to encourage you to support strengthened protections for wolves through the five-year review process of the Oregon Wolf Plan. Wolf recovery in Oregon has been a success thus far, and strengthening Oregon's plan will ensure this continues.

Specifically, I request that the Department remain in charge of depredation investigations. These critical investigations need to be unbiased and based upon clear evidence. Wildlife Services has shown in the past it is not capable of this job.

Additionally, I also oppose killing wolves in response to conflicts with deer and elk. Wolves are wild animals, and ungulates are their natural prey. If we kill wolves due to conflict with ungulates, we are shortchanging recovery.

I also encourage the Commission to maintain provisions that require non-lethal measures be used to deter wolf-livestock conflict prior to any lethal control being used. This provides clarity to the public and livestock community around what is required and what is most effective to deter conflict. These preventative measures are critical for wolves, and should not be weakened now.

As a final point, I do not support a wolf-hunting season now or at any point in the future. This type of management is inappropriate for wolves, especially given the importance of maintaining pack structure.

Thank you for considering my comments during the five-year review process.

Sincerely,

Michaelle Carter
