To the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife,

Please end the coyote kill contests in our state as soon as possible. They are cruel, and teach children inhumane practices and values.

If you are interested in learning more about how coyote killing is inhumane, please don't hesitate to reach out.

Thank you,

I have worked with others including meeting with our reps in Oregon to stop this barbarity. For three years now legislation has been introduced to stop this unnatural, tragedy, allowing mentally ill individuals to simply go slaughter as many coyotes as they wish to win a pot of money and new guns. Some take their sons with them, what are they being taught. This is a real tragedy, the desensitizing of the human is involved allowing them to feel these massive killings are all right. This is one of the real problems of the world, greed, insensitivity, and ignorance of the natural world. Humans are guilty of destroying our one and only precious planet This senseless killing must stop, not go on for another year, but stop immediately. Resident of Southern Oregon, I am horrified by all the hostility, all the violence, and all the killing in the world, all must change.

Dear Sir or Madam:

As an Oregon resident, I am urging you to put an end to inhumane coyote killing contests in our state.

Coyotes are an important part in the balance of nature. Every time man tries to tamper, he makes things worse. It is common knowledge that the head of a coyote pack has control over the breeding -- so contest participating, going for the biggest coyote, likely involves the animals that are in their prime and are probably the top of the coyote pyramid in their pack. Then, with that control gone, the young males are free to breed willy-nilly.

I moved here a year ago -- in part to get out of the macho "ye-haws" in Indiana. I thought Oregon was more civilized and environmental than Indiana. This makes me wonder.

Subject: Are there really coyote killing contests in Oregon?

Why? They are nature's creatures. I don't want them eating my dog or my cat, so I keep my pets inside the house at night. But I don't want other people killing the coyotes for no reason. I like to listen to them at night. They have as much right to live as everyone else does. If I had chickens or other farm animals, I would build safe buildings for them so the coyotes couldn't get to them at night.

The coyotes can eat the wild rabbits. Killing them for fun or contests just is not right.

People shouldn't be killing wild animals just for sport. If they are going to eat them because there is no other food, then that's ok. Killing for contests is not.

Thanks,

Karen

It was shocking and utterly disturbing to hear that these contests are allowed in our state. While I fully support ethical and legitimate wildlife management approaches, these contests are unethical and serve no such wildlife management purpose. As a former resident of both Washington and California, I understand that different states have different laws and regulations around managing their wildlife populations. But this is an area where we can certainly follow our neighbors to the north and south, and put practices in place that are humane, and allow humans and coyotes to better coexist.

Dear Commissioners,

Coyotes play an important role in their ecosystems, keeping populations of rodents and other small animals in check. They are not a threat to humans, yet humans are certainly a threat to them. The coyote killing contests in Harney County and elsewhere are unethical, wasteful and unsporting. They serve no legitimate wildlife management purpose and are counterproductive because they can increase conflicts with coyotes and increase coyote numbers.

Eight U.S. states have already banned killing contests, including Oregon's neighbors Washington and California, and other western states like Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It's time for Oregon to do the same. Please ban them.

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

Is it not your job to be stewards of our forests and open spaces? How does the cruel and inhumane methods used by ranchers in eastern Oregon make any sense? Studies have shown that, by killing off parents, the immature untended coyote pups become more of a nuisance.

By banning coyote killing contests, ranchers will still be able to kill unwanted coyotes on their land!! This horrible way of getting rid of coyotes is not a best practice at all. It is medieval and a shame upon this great state where humane and science based wildlife management should be our guide.

If this horrible method was working...then why do they continue to claim they "need" to kill coyotes this way? Obviously, it is NOT working as a sound method of wildlife control.

We have tried for years to ban this practice. It is time to join the fourteen other states that have banned this practice and show that Oregon is not a backward state, but that we are joining those who value wildlife and those that wish to model a state that is progressive and smart.

Please, isn't it time now? Must this horrible slaughter be allowed? Are you not embarrassed when you meet with other states?

Thank you for listening, please do something this year!!

Most Sincerely,
Marianne Bickett, grandmother, retired teacher, and coyote advocate

Public opinion polls routinely indicate that a strong majority of Oregonians support legislation and other governmental action to ban coyote killing contests across all five congressional districts, in both urban and rural areas of Oregon. It is simply time for our state to put an end to these contests, as they are inhumane and operate against all sensible views of hunting and predator management.

I was raised in western South Dakota, so I am no stranger to ranching and the overall hunting mentality. Animal killing contests have nothing to do with true sportsmanship, with responsible hunting of game animals, or with livestock protection. It is simply a long-outdated mode of thought and action, and Oregon really has no need for such a practice. I urge ODFW to ban coyote killing contests statewide.

To wildlife Commission

As a Oregon resident for 32 years I believe this is a terrible misguided program..As a hunter I understand the culling of problem predators but so many that don't understand balance..Old ranchers or farmers have a saying "the only good coyote or wolf is a dead one"...No care or knowledge or concern of balance of the shooting of these terrible programs. I helped on some big wheat farms ,thousands acres and when I was on the tractor or combine I could have shot a dozen of coyotes but we just laughed and watched.,3 or 4 or more follow as we plowed up field as they were pouncing on all the mice and rats that had been eating the crops during summer...The next year was always better,because of keeping the balance...To kill or slaughter for contest is a despicable and barbaric waist.

Hello Commission,

Coyote killing contests are unethical, wasteful and unsporting. They serve no legitimate wildlife management purpose and are counterproductive because they can increase conflicts with coyotes and increase coyote numbers. Natural predators are necessary to maintain ecological balance. The more unbalanced the environment becomes, there will be fewer and fewer healthy habitable areas for all living things, including humans.

Eight U.S. states have already banned killing contests, including Oregon's neighbors Washington and California, and other western states like Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It's time for Oregon to do the same.

As an Oregon resident, I am urging you to put an end to inhumane coyote killing contests in our state.

Dear Mr. Melcher,

As an Oregon resident, I am deeply disturbed to hear that the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife permits coyote killing contests in our state. Not only are these contests ecologically harmful, as has been recognized by numerous neighboring states (WA, CA, AZ, NM, CO and 3 others), but they are downright inhumane.

As you are likely aware, these contests are cruel killing events where shooters (these people are not hunters) compete to kill the healthiest, largest coyotes - culling the most robust animals who should be reproducing out of the pack - for cash and prizes. As a lifelong hunter with a deep respect for Oregon's natural environment I implore you to ban these contests. These species upon which healthy ecosystems depend deserve our respect.

The bottom line is as I am sure you already know, these contests serve no legitimate management purpose.

Your prompt attention to this matter is much appreciated.

To the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission,

As an Oregon resident, I am urging (pleading) you to put an end to the inhumane coyote killing contests in our state. Since I moved to Oregon over a year ago, I've very much appreciated the culture of indigenous people who have lived here for thousands of years. One part of this culture that has strongly resonated with me is respecting the Earth and all the other living things that call it home. Hunting and fishing were done with respect for the animal/fish, and people strived to keep balance with nature.

Killing contests are the complete opposite of that, and are awful for so many reasons. Besides it's utter lack of respect for other living things, it cultivates the colonizer attitude that we humans can do anything we want. I blame this attitude as a main reason we're experiencing the climate crisis.

Thank you for your time and consideration of this important matter.

Slaughtering these coyotes in a contest venue demonstrates ignorant, immature behavior of a few and is embarrassing to our state. There is absolutely NO NEED for this barbaric "contest". To the ODFW commissioners:

If you have ever read my many letters and emails send to you in the past decade, you know how I feel about coyote killing contests. It should not take this long for you to see that the public is dismayed and disgusted over your inaction in stopping this barbaric practice. Other states have banned this horrific practice of wanton killing of our wildlife.

I would hope that with your appointed position that scientific based knowledge would guide your decisions on how to protect and preserve wildlife and their habitat for present and future generations. Coyote killing contests are the worst example of defying scientific knowledge about a necessary and important predator. Proven research from many wildlife biologists (Hopkins PhD, et al.) has shown that indiscriminate killing of coyotes creates a physiological effect on their reproduction, either causing larger litters and / or increasing the survival rate of each litter. The end result is increased populations. Your allowing coyote killing contests is a demonstration of the pet gerbil running as hard as it can in its exercise wheel but going nowhere fast. Second , it is an inhumane practice which disgusts the knowledgeable public. We should be moving out of a medieval view of killing wildlife only because its place in the ecosystem is to kill its prey as its natural way of life. Without coyotes or other predators doing their job, our rodent population would explode. I know of some in the ranching industry who will not shoot coyotes because of their keeping the gopher, vole, and ground squirrel populations under control therefore limiting damage to pasture land and irrigation canals.

Please ban coyote killing contests. Your commission is the only agency who can finally erase this backward and unnecessary practice from raising its ugly head ever again.

Sincerely,
Donna Harris D.V.M.

Subject: End Killing Contests

Dear Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission:

Please stop coyote killing contests in Oregon.

I live here in a rural area of Oregon, about 30 miles south of Eugene, and I am able to scare off coyotes very easily. I go out and yell, shine a flashlight on myself (so they can see the “scary” human) and bang a pan or something.

They run away. And they avoid our place.

I don't like the idea of young people being encouraged to kill animals when there is no reason to kill.

It isn't good for the young person.

It isn't good for our communities to reward unnecessary violence against animals or people.

Teach young people to respect life, and only kill for serious purposes, not for pleasure.

If they need an outlet for their anger, help them go to law school to prosecute bad guys.

If they need to burn off excess energy, play sports, hike, help your neighbors build fences.

If they need to prove to others how brave and strong they are, they can join the military.

Don't set up killing contests that not only degrade the individual, but disturb the peace-loving members of the community.

It's an archaic, misguided pastime that rewards destructive impulses.

Leslie Burpo

I am asking that you put an end to all killing contests of wildlife, and especially coyotes. It is inhumane, it doesn't solve any problems, and it furthers the impression that wildlife is simple vermin to be exterminated.

As a 4th generation Oregonian, and a taxpayer, I expect your department to help conserve ALL wildlife, not just that deemed appropriate.

Please do better.

Subject: Ban Coyote Killing Contests in Oregon

Hello,
I am a resident of Astoria, Oregon, and strongly urge you to ban the coyote killing contests that are allowed in our state. I would love to see us ban all wildlife killing oontests.

We have coyotes in our region of the state as well. The management of these animals is possible without the cruelty and damage caused by a "contest".

Allowing cruel actions and marketing them as sport diminishes the reputation of responsible hunters. Additionally, it reflects irresponsible behavior for generations. Most importantly, studies have shown it doesn't create sustainable wildlife management. Testimony supporting this is available from over 70 scientists:
https://mgaleg.maryland.gov/cmte_testimony/2021/ehe/1JlcVL8zgnTUpVaJODOu_GUTH8v4_nn-N.pdf

States in our region have already banned this inhumane behavior: Washington, California, Colorado, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Please, please consider bringing our state forward into responsible hunting behavior and wildlife management.

Ban killing contests of wildlife in Oregon.

We are better than this.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Susan Stein

This is cruel and murderous and is not teaching anyone anything good and is akin to dog fights and cock fights and other heinous displays that delight in the torture of animals and killing for killing's sake.

Coyotes are an important part of the ecosystem, helping to keep rats and other vermin and problem species from overpopulation. If there are problem coyote's, they can be relocated to remote areas, or dispatched singly and humanely, but making a game/contest is disgusting.

Hi ODFW,

As a resident of Oregon, I was actually a bit astonished that we as a state allow such a cruel and completely unnecessary event happen. I would want better for the nation as a whole, but also for our state to represent compassion around absolutely unnecessary, barbaric, and disgusting "sporting" of these beautiful creatures.

If someone wants to hunt animals, there are plenty of ways in which they can do so by obtaining hunting licenses for the desired animal. Coyotes are not part of that "norm" and therefore should be protected and left alone. Man does not need to take yet another thing from this planet.

Please consider banning this event and saving these lives.

Coyotes deserve protection and Oregon should be looked to as an example for other states.

It is your responsibility to protect our wildlife so they do not become extinct.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Coyote killing contests are cruel events during which participants compete to kill the most or the largest coyotes for cash and prizes. At events like the Harney County Coyote Classic, hundreds of animals may be killed. Coyote killing contests are unethical, wasteful and unsporting. They serve no legitimate wildlife management purpose and are counterproductive because they can increase conflicts with coyotes and increase coyote numbers.

Eight U.S. states have already banned killing contests, including Oregon's neighbors Washington and California, and other western states like Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It's time for Oregon to do the same.

It has just come to my attention that we allow coyote a killing contests here in my State. I am shocked and dismayed that anyone would see that as a legitimate pursuit! We humans have encroached upon the prevailing territories of wildlife species and then asserted our God-given right to destroy them? Let us see them, instead, as a part of the ecological niche in which they are an integral part. Here in Portland we often see coyotes in our neighborhoods, and, yes, they will hunt cats as prey, but most of my neighbors see that as a reason to keep their cats indoors at night. I have two cats and do what I can to lessen their exposure to danger. Coyotes have simply adapted to a new environment using their survival instincts in the best way they can. Nobody should consider killing them as a sport! It is not something that elevates humans above the rest of the animal kingdom. Sincerely, Lily Johnson

To Whom It May Concern:

As I was a child I was raised in Lakeview, Oregon.

I lived in the household of a well-known, probably infamous maybe legendary hunter-trapper-fisherman, and all-around sportsman who shall remain nameless. Those were the renegade seventies and eighties when things were pretty lawless in the high desert.

One of my most distinct, raw and emotionally traumatic memories: I'm sitting in the back seat of a VW bug with my twin sister and little brother while my stepfather holds a 22 out the driver side window while he chases a coyote across the alkali lakebeds.

The Bug corkscrews across the dry lake bed after a breathless coyote. All of us children in the backseat are crying. The coyote's back leg is nearly shot off and dangling while he continues to run.

It's taken me nearly forty years to wake up from the somnambulism those kind of memories deaden in an individual. But I hope someone there in your offices behind your desks will wake up today! Feel the stirring of your conscience, hear the quiet call of righteousness, and respond to the pricks in your heart to do the right thing.

It's not good and right stewardship to kill for the sake of killing. Please send the right message to children, the culture and future humanity! BE HUMANE and STOP senseless killing for killings sake.

Warmest Best,
Danielle Celeste Grigsby

I am a registered voter in Jackson County, in Southern Oregon.

Please ban the inhumane coyote killing contests that are still legal in our state. We live among coyotes on a farm here in Southern Oregon, & we all coexist peacefully.

Just this weekend, we enjoyed seeing 3 young coyotes frolicking in the pasture across from our house. They were healthy young specimens, & do no harm here. They have an important place in our food chain.

Thank you,

Coyote killing contests are unethical, wasteful and barbaric. They serve no legitimate wildlife management purpose and can increase conflicts with coyotes and increase coyote numbers.

Coyote killing contests are bloodthirsty events during which participants compete and slaughter the most or the largest coyotes for cash and prizes. At events like the Harney County Coyote Classic, hundreds of animals will be killed.

Eight U.S. states have already banned killing contests, including Oregon's neighbors Washington and California, and other western states like Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado.

It's time for Oregon to WAKE UP and do the same.

What will it take to touch your consciences? Killing for sport is disgusting. I am an elderly person now. When I grew up I was taught that killing is for food and self defense. Coyote killing contests do not land in either category. This is extermination by sport sponsored by short-sighted greedy ranchers/farmers. Sadly, there are all too many persons who delight in the act of killing things. You know it and I know it. It SHOULD horrify you when you think about those people living out there around you. Violence is at an all-time high. More and more people want to outlaw ownership of guns. If you don't think a constitutional right can be changed to suit a particular group of people then you haven't been paying attention.

Dear Commission,

I cannot understand how humans can gain enjoyment from inflicting pain and death on other living creatures. This shows humans at their abhorrent worst. I hate to think I live in a state that condones the coyote killing contests when they are banned in a number of other states. I still envision a man smiling while holding a dead nursing coyote mother he just killed. No doubt her cubs starved to death. Meanwhile that man's children watched the contest and learned that killing wildlife for the pleasure of it was fine and good. Is this really what we want children to learn?

It still boggles my mind that people have no compassion for other living creatures. No good purpose is served by killing these animals. It only serves to satisfy human bloodlust. Certainly our sense of morals and ethics should tell us this wrong—whatever the ethics, Christian or otherwise. It is cruel to inflict pain and kill other living creatures for the fun of it. If this state doesn't end this practice I will be ashamed to call myself an Oregonian.

Really, Fish and Game you need to start acting as a protector of what life still exists in our Oregon forests. Hello,

As a native Oregonian who has lived here all of my life, I am urging you to put an end to inhumane coyote killing contests in our state. There has to be a better way to manage the populations and not encourage brutality against coyotes or other animals in our state.

Thank you for listening.

Hello,

As a long time Oregon resident, I am urging you to put an end to the inhumane coyote killing contests in our state. It sends the wrong message - that killing is a game. And it intentionally murders innocent beings for sport. We are better than this. We want our children to be better than this.

Thank you,
Diane Rios

I don't understand why this continues to be part of the job for you folks. I've been fighting against ODFW since I was 10 years old. Do you only hire short sighted, egotistical people?

It's time to make changes, build better overpassed for our wildlife. We need to live with them, not kill them. Be a strategist, not a killer.

Linda

Coyotes do not deserve to be hunted for a 'contest'.

It is bad for the animals and our environment. It is a sick practice that tells children that it is okay to indiscriminately kill a certain animal. This time it's coyotes.

Please end the killing contests.
Thank you

Subject: IT'S TIME FOR OREGON!

As an Oregon resident, I am urging you to put an end to inhumane coyote killing contests in our state.

Coyote killing contests are cruel events during which participants compete to kill the most or the largest coyotes for cash and prizes. At events like the Harney County Coyote Classic, hundreds of animals may be killed. Coyote killing contests are unethical, wasteful and unsporting. They serve no legitimate wildlife management purpose and are counterproductive because they can increase conflicts with coyotes and increase coyote numbers.

Eight U.S. states have already banned killing contests, including Oregon's neighbors Washington and California, and other western states like Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It's time for Oregon to do the same.

D Kekule, Family & Friends

Stop killing these essential animals!!! There is a reason they are here... to kill and control rodents!!!

We have to quit destroying our planet and all its creatures.

Look what's happening to our climate... how's that working out for you? 🌍 🌍 🌍
